

Quality management according to ISO 9001:2008

A successful company is focused on its main target group - the customers.

An effective quality management system is the ideal tool for the top management: it structures change processes and makes them controllable. And it ensures efficiency - especially for continuous improvement. Focusing on the 'quality' indicator, this management system creates trust and credibility in the public eye.

The certification of the quality management system issued by an independent certification office gives your customers the confidence to see you as a reliable partner. It increases your worth on the market and contributes to ensure your entrepreneurial success sustainably.

For many branches, specific quality requirements of ISO 9001 have become the foundation, e.g. in vocational training, the industry of railway, automobile, aircraft, medicine and food.

As a member of the world-wide operating AFNOR group, GUTcert offers these certifications separately or in combination with e.g. environmental or occupational safety standards.

Advantages of the GUTcert

Each certification audit shall be thoroughly prepared: The processes and their interactions are already considered during the document review before the audit takes place. During the on-site audit the auditor is checking intensively the possible improvement potentials.

According to our company policy, we consider every certification audit as a process of continuous improvement and as possibility to achieve goals to strengthen a company's aim to become more reliable and successful.

Therefore, special attention is paid to the audit report, where many specific recommendations and suggestions for improving the management system are given.

As a nationally accredited organization, certificates issued by GUTcert are internationally recognized. They generally have a duration of max. 3 years.

During an annual surveillance audit and a verification audit after 3 years, the certification will be proved continuously concerning all implemented processes.

Your benefits

GUTcert helps you to detect errors in your quality management and to avoid them in the future. This way your company becomes more profitable and saves unnecessary administrative effort, time and money.

You are taken seriously as a client with individual needs and requirements and will have a permanent, competent contact person. Short communication channels allow us to react flexible to changes at any time.
